More Power For Pegasus

Your Power Tools article, "You Send Me" (June 1995, page 57), mentioned all the things that make a mailer great. But it did not say much about Pegasus 2.0, which is currently in beta and is available as free-ware on the net.

Pegasus has all the features that the author says go into making a great e-mail reader. And did I mention it is still free? Not like Eudora.

Well, Pegasus is worth writing home about. So I will do it for you.

Do-it-Yourselfer Touts 'Home' Improvement

I saw your July 1995 issue and at the top of the cover, it read "How to Make a Great Home Page." Steve Silberman's article ("Home Sweet Home Page," page 52) was excellent! Very easy to understand and follow. He provided definitions, tips and most of all, an example, which I used to start my first Web page!

Thank you for helping me get started on my World-Wide Web programming journey.

Multilingual Resources

The Internet, born and raised in the United States, has become an important means of communication today. The Internet boom is just starting to make its way into the vocabulary of the Spanish-speaking community.

However, we here in Spain are somewhat deprived. The amount of information available on the net is abundant, but, how many resources can you find in Spanish? Many Spaniards are able to struggle with the English-dominated Internet. But what I'd like to know is: What does the net have for those of us whose comprehension of the English language is minimal?

tains two sites with a Spanish accent—LatinoLink, a Web site, and Communities Center, an America Online forum. Also, check out the Spain Internet Resources Web site (http://www.uji.es/spain\_www.html) and Usenet's soc.culture.spain. Both were reviewed in Global Village in our May issue, which focused on sites related to Latin America and Spain.

Forbes' 50, Redux

Thomas Forbes' "Fifty Problems Online and Their Solutions" in your May issue (page 38) was the very best article I have ever read!

The information was great and the humor outstanding. Let's read some more from him. Sensational!

Editor's note: You—and all the rest of our readers—are in luck! This issue's cover story, "The 50 Best Web Sites" (see page 40), offers Thomas Forbes' top choices of URL compendiums, which is sure to spark your explorations of the World-Wide Web.
